RICHS welcomes the CBC to their new space in the library. The CBC held an open house Saturday, March 8 from 1—3 to share their new arrangement with their membership. The move proved to be very timely because of the fire on 7th Street Moline. Most of their artifacts escaped damage because they were at RICHS. The CBC also has a storage area in the basement of the A/P House.

Waffle breakfasts will continue at the Friends Circle on the 1st Saturday of the month.

Financial Report

Read carefully and do not panic. The figures given below are from the financial reports shared with the board of directors at their monthly meetings.

	Nov. 1, 2024 - March 22, 2025	Jan. 1 - Mar.22, 2025 Jan. 24 - 2025	Feb. 21, 2025 Feb. 21 - 2025	Mar. 21, 2025
Income	89,090.07	57,044.37	56,025	883.39
Expenses	21,613.08	10,893.57	1,523.96	4,629.19
Net	67,476.34	46,150.44	54,591.04	-3,745.80

The figures above are an attempt to explain that most of the membership dues are paid in November and December plus there are a number of end of year donations from estates and IRA-type accounts. The important number to note is the $46,180.44 which is the final figure if RICHHS plans to stay within the amount given in the fiscal year.

The checkbook balance is $158,037.26 with additional CD's at 4%.

Birdies for Charity So why participate in Birdies? Yes, we are in a favorable position and probably will be for several years. The money earned through Birdies helps make repairs to the physical plant without using the endowment fund. Many of the donors of former years have died and have given their last gift. We need to be thoughtful in our expenses and continue to honor the work that has been done in the past. We have a wonderful resource for our present community and researchers in the future. We should make every effort to preserve it. Please donate through the Birdies program.

Friends

The January and February lunches were not held due the extremely cold weather. The leadership regrets any inconvenience the cancellations caused. Jerry at Riverfront Grille did not charge any fee for the cancellations. The paid reservations were rolled over to the March meeting.

We thank Bill Howard for his many years of greeting people and serving as the treasurer of “Friends.” Bill was one of the faces of the group. He will tell you that Charlie Pierce recruited him for RICHHS. Bill is always quick with a joke or a story from the Navy, Hiking Club or life growing up in Michigan. He is not disappearing from the group. He will be dining and enjoying the meal without any responsibilities.

Thanks, Bill for more than twenty years of dedication to Friends. That means he spent more than 200 lunches as the group moved from the Deere-Wiman Carriage House to the Congregational Church in Moline to Christ Episcopal Church in Moline, to the current site at Riverfront Grille in Rock Island. It's been quite a “hike.”

The Centennial Bridge Toll Scandal

By Heather Carlson

The five arches on the Rock Island Centennial Bridge are a familiar sight to all residents of the Quad Cities. Construction of the bridge began in 1938 and was completed in 1940. Designed by Ash-Howar-Needles & Tanmen and built by the American Bridge Company, McCarthy Improvement Company, and Priester Construction Company, it is 3,850 feet long and stands 170 feet above the Mississippi. Originally the bridge was going to be named the Galbraith Bridge in honor of Rock Island's mayor at the time of the bridge opening, Robert Galbraith. Mayor Galbraith, however, favored naming it the Centennial Bridge in honor of Rock Island's centennial. In 2017 the Centennial Bridge was officially renamed in honor of Master Sgt. Stanley Talbot and is now the Master Sgt. Stanley Talbot Memorial Bridge.

The bridge was originally a toll bridge with motorists paying $.10 and pedestrians $.05. Over time tolls increased to $.50 per automobile and ran as high as $2.00 for semis. On May 2, 2003, the bridge was declared toll free and a ceremony commemorated the event. However, not all the tolls collected for a period of as many as twenty years ended up with the Rock Island Bridge Commission.

In 1960 ten toll takers and three supervisors were indicted on federal charges of conspiracy to defraud the US Government. Neither the bridge superintendent nor the bridge commissioner was involved in the scheme.

Those indicted were suspended and replaced by police officers.

The bridge was equipped with an electronic counter system which was defective. Toll takers discovered the defect and took advantage of it by disconnecting the system, which allowed those involved in the scheme to falsify the amount of money collected and keep the difference. In April of 1960 a relatively new bridge toll taker, on the advice of his attorney, told State's Attorney Bernard J. Moran he had been "invited" to participate in the scheme of falsifying the amount of tolls collected. He was told to go along with the plan and the State's Attorney's Office launched an investigation. A month later the FBI began their own investigation.

The system of taking toll money involved three levels. The first involved toll collectors disconnecting the electronic counting system during peak traffic hours for no more than an hour and pocketing the tolls collected. The simplest and longest in use recorded trucks or buses crossing the bridge at a lower class and keeping the difference. A variation of this level of the scheme had the toll taker recording a two or three axle truck as a two- axle car and keeping the difference. The electronic counter only counted axles, so detection was difficult. Another level of the scheme involved prepaid passes used by motorists who crossed the bridge frequently. This aspect of the scheme had the toll collector taking money from a motorist without a pass, applying that amount to a frequently used pass, and keeping the total.

State's attorney Moran placed a call to the FBI asking for assistance with the investigation, and a large number of agents was brought in equipped with cameras, radios and other surveillance equipment. They photographed toll collecting using cameras placed in the rear of special trucks, and positioned one agent, disguised as a vagrant, on the bridge pretending to look at the river. He had a radio hidden in his clothes and gave a running account of the activities from that vantage point.

Determining guilt or innocence was a difficult process due to the number of collectors involved in the scheme. In order to prevent further misappropriation of funds, the bridge authority suspended all collectors without pay until those who were guilty were found. Innocent collectors received all back pay. During the grand jury hearings, FBI agents testified using the films taken during their investigation. Indictments were brought against 12 of the suspended toll takers, many of whom began working in the 1940's to the early 1950's. The indictments charged that their scheme intended to make false reports aimed at obstructing the Congressional purpose to make the bridge free for public use.

Ultimately the 12 suspended toll takers were indicted in Springfield, Illinois on August 14, 1959 and arraigned on September 4, 1959 in Rock Island Federal Court. One of the suspended collectors pled guilty and refused a lawyer. He was referred to a federal probation officer. Ten others filed motions to dismiss the charges, and the 12th person's case was delayed pending a change of attorney. While the exact amount of money taken during the time of the scheme was unknown, the bridge commission conferred with federal officials and the state's attorney's office to recover what money they could from a bonding firm that was notified of the loss of funds.

per roll. The board of directors has set aside $4,000 to use this year to make new scans and have a searchable format. It is estimated that it will take three years to finish.

New Projects

Webpage

Corey Fetes, Eileen Wicker, and Kathy Michel are working with Augustana College to develop a new webpage for RICHS. The goal is to make the resources at RICHS available remotely including (for now) information about the books. If you would like to help, Wednesdays and Fridays are the days to learn how to scan the information on the books.

Digitizing Maps

A big thank you goes to Mike Flaherty who is currently digitizing the map collection. Orin Rockhold scanned the county plat books this winter. He also with some help from Tony Girrard has had the county map from 1868 scanned and broken into individual pictures of the townships. Now, the project has gone a step further with more maps including the railroads and the maps the gas stations used to give away. There is no cost.

Digitizing The Daily Union and The Weekly Union

The Union was printed during the Civil War and into the 1920's. RICHS has the paper copies and the 45 rolls of microfilm. One estimate for saving these papers is $175

Blueprints

RICHS has had a collection of blueprints in the basement of the house. Organizing them was an Eagle Scout project in recent years. Recording them on a spreadsheet was a summer project recently. Now, since Dennis Kelly donated horizontal file cabinets and the blueprints from Kelly and Associates, a new summer project has emerged: evaluating and sorting the original collection. George Bathje and Karin Martin have developed a rubric for evaluating them. If you have some time on Thursdays, come join them.

New Printers

There are two new printers in the library, a Brother All-in-One for the public and a RICOH CL2510. They replaced two that were old and non-functioning.

Roll Call

Every year the names of the membership are shared in the December newsletter. This year it is in the first newsletter of 2025. Every effort has been made to have the list complete. Please call if you find yourself “missing in action.” We have had several people in charge of this responsibility in recent months, but there is every reason to believe it is now under control. Thank you for your patience.

2024 Birdies Report

Thank you to the 2024 Birdies participants. RICHS received $4,500 including the bonus from other tournament partners. The money was used to make repairs and update the Atkinson-Peek House. Repairs to the carriage house are ongoing and consist of window glazing, ceiling patching, and exterior stucco patching.

Although they are not listed here, there were members/patrons who made contributions after the Birdies deadline. That money was added to the general fund to provide archival supplies and services to the public.
